

Salem Gmail On Your iPhone or iPad

Many of us already have our iPhone or iPad configured for our work email through the built in Exchange configuration in iOS.

With the move to Google Apps and Gmail it is time to add a new account to our mobile devices.

Google recommends that you configure your account on any iOS device using the built in Exchange application instead of the built in Gmail application.

Instructions can be found here: <https://support.google.com/a/users/answer/138740>

The problem seems to be that on an iPhone or iPad with two Exchange accounts it is impossible to open an attachment in either account.

We have done some testing here and deleting either the new Gmail account or the original ACCESS Exchange account resolves the problem.

We are still encouraging everyone to configure their new work Gmail account as per Google instructions. You just need to understand that there will be some issues with attachments until the original ACCESS account is removed/deleted from your device.

After 4:00 pm on 9/20/2013, all new email will be delivered to Gmail so there will no longer be a need to have your ACCESS Exchange email account on your phone.

You will still be able to access your old ACCESS email from a computer at:
<https://exchange.access-k12.org/owa>